Community Matters!

What's in a name? Can one word make a difference?

The original members of EACA very much thought so. The original proposal for the organization name was East Atlanta Neighborhood Organization, but the more communally oriented East Atlanta took issue. Neighborhood by definition is an "adjacent district; the state of being neighbors; in the vicinity." Community, however, is defined as "a body of people having common interests or living in one locality." The thought was that the word community was much more about the people who live in a place and the way they think. You can have good neighbors and bad neighbors but the only way to have community is through interaction.

That is how we became EACA.

What You Don't See

In addition to the many activities EACA contributes to through its committees such as the East Atlanta Parents Network, Parks, Beautification and Arts & Culture, the Association also works to impact the community by advocating on behalf of our neighbors. The below committees work tirelessly to promote the growth and overall well-being of East Atlanta and its citizens.

Economic Development

Dedicated to the growth and development of businesses in East Atlanta.

Education

Provides a channel of communication and engagement between the community and the school system.

Land Use and Zoning

Liaison for development-related activities within the EACA area.

Neighbor in Need

Helps Seniors in East Atlanta with emergency home repairs.

Public Safety

Helping to keep East Atlanta safe.

Transportation
